

Progident

Daniel Girard, Eng., MBA
President

More Flexible Work Ergonomics with an Improved Platform

The application platform for version 10.7 of Progident/Clinic includes some major advances.

These advances offer benefits such as flexible positioning of the software's work windows, which improves the display of information based on the number of screens used in the treatment room, reception area or consulting room.

The management-related objectives are to create a 360-degree view of patient information that limits and even eliminates the need to manipulate the software during treatments, but also to build an even more effective administrative environment in the reception area.

Technically speaking, the most recent version of the Progident platform lets you position any work window of the software on the screen of your choice at your workstation.

Here is a simple example of two screens in a treatment room: The first screen can display the daily agenda with general patient information and professional notes; the second can display the patient's dental chart, where all information concerning the examination, diagnosis and treatment plan is shown.

You can choose which information is displayed on each screen. This gives you all the flexibility you need to create a personalized working environment for each professional and management function in your clinic.

At Progident, we believe that your approach is part of your success. By offering you the possibility of adapting your computerized management to your key processes and your business vision in the most effective way possible, we are convinced that our management platform will maximize your clinic's development.

For more information about Progident products and services, visit our website at www.progident.com or call one of our advisers at 1 800 650-0143. Progident is a service of the ACDQ.

